NAVAL ACADEMY CLASSES FACE BIG REDUCTION

Adoption of Hughes Disarmament Plan Will Mean 1,400 Less Midshipmen.

TO WAIT ON PARLEY

No Legislation On This Subject Is Expected To Be Introduced Before Next Spring.

Washington, Nov. 16.—The cadet personnel of the Naval Academy at Annapolis, now 2,415, would be cut to 800 or 1,000, with corresponding reduction and reorganization of the executive staff of the institution under the naval and ship scrapping program proposed by Secretary Hughes. The reduction in the number of midshipmen would be effected by a curtailment of the Congressional appointments to the academy.

Under the law as it now stands each Senator and Representative in Congress is permitted to have five cadets of his selection at the academy. If the Hughes plan is adopted Congress would immediately enact legislation reducing the Congressional prerogative of Annapolis appointment to two instead of five.

In this way the supply of officers for the diminished navy would be largely reduced, for all cadets at Annapolis are potential officers of the navy. There is already talk at the Capitol of legislation of cutting down the number of midshipmen, but thus far there is no disposition manifested to take such action unti: the Conference shall have reached an agreement and the other powers have exchanged ratifications of the agreement.

It was predicted by one of the Administration leaders in Congress today that it was extremely unlikely that there would be any legislation growing out of the Armament Conference before next March or April, and not even then unless the powers get into accord on the reduction of armament.

Thus far, while naval leaders in Congress have quietly been canvassing the effect of the American proposal on the Naval Academy and the naval personnel, there is no disposition to oppose any cutting down of the number of the midshipmen that members of the two houses may appoint. They are much more interested in the vastly broader phases of the American proposal, and even the question of dampening the ardor of prospective naval officers for a "career" in the navy does not cut any figure in their consideration of the proposal. They say the number of midshipmen, in the event of the adoption of the program, would be reduced to anywhere from 800 to 1,000, with an annual graduating class of 200 or 250, who, with those promoted from the non-commissioned ranks of the navy, would furnish the regular annual replenishment of officers for the navy.

With the reduced cadet corps would follow retrenchment of the academy staff, which probably would be taken care of by transfers to other posts in large part.

Other sweeping changes that probably would follow in the wake of an agreement on the Hughes proposal would be: Reduction of the navy to about 50,000 enlisted strength.

Reduction in number of officers generally. Reduction of the civilian personnel of the navy, including navy yards and other shore stations. Shifting of many of the older and perhaps some of the younger men of the navy to civilian positions.

The Man In Chains

Voluntary Collection Ordered Returned to Donors—Actor Has $6.82 Left.

A man giving the name of George L. Hess, who says he is from Salisbury, N. C., early this afternoon gave an exhibition of unchaining himself before a large throng of persons at the corner of King and St. Asaph streets. Voluntary contributions followed in profusion and the police then stepped in. The pot contained exactly $620.37.

A large crowd followed Policeman Magner when he took Hess to police headquarters. Some of Hess' audience appeared indignant that the man should be taken in custody and others simply came along merely out of curiosity to see what the outcome would be. Anyhow, the throng swarmed into police headquarters. Mayor Duncan was sent for.

Policeman Magner explained the case. The mayor decided that such tricks could not be done and directed that where money was involved the money at hand be turned over to those who had contributed who wanted it returned. There were many who asked for their money back, although the show was over and Hess had done as promised. Then there were a number who after getting their money returned it to Hess as he left headquarters.

According to the spectators Hess permitted himself to be chained hand and foot and in short order he freed himself from the chains much to the amazement of the spectators.

After all who desired to get their money had obtained it Hess had $6.82 left and then he obtained a couple of dollars additional after he left headquarters from persons who witnessed his act. The distribution of the pot was made by Police Sergeant Wilkinson.

STATE TROOPS ARE ORDERED TO IOWA CITY

Action Taken After Strikers Attack Packing Plant. 25 Injured.

RIOTING IN CHICAGO

Police and Non-Union Drivers Attacked By Strikers With Clubs and Missiles.

Des Moines, Iowa, Nov. 16.—Two companies of Iowa National Guard were odrered by Gov. N. E. Kendall to report for duty at Ottumwa, where a strike of employees of the John Morrell Packing Company has been in progress for nearly a month.

The troops were ordered following word from the county sheriff, county attorney and the Mayor of Ottumwa that the situation was beyond their control.

Sheriff George Giltner informed the governor that he had employed every available man to serve as deputies, but that these were unable to handle the situation.

Twenty-five employees and other persons were injured today at the plant of the packing company when a mob attempted to break through a line of pickets to get into the plant.

T. H. Foster, vice president of the company, and Ernest Manns, superintendent, were among those struck by flying missles. Neither was hurt seriously. Men on their way to work were pulled from cars and forcibly restrained from entering the buildings. Foster was one of those who joined in the appeal to the Governor for troops.

Chicago, Nov. 16.—Riots, general disorder, sluggings and stabbings and the burning of wagons, trucks and their contents, marked the second day of the teamsters' strike here. The police department was kept on the run all day answering riot calls. Three drivers were so badly beaten and cut that they were sent to hospitals. Two of them may die. One of the drivers slugged and stabbed on the opening day of the strike is also near death.

All of which, according to the employers, means that Chicago will be an "open shop" for teamsters hereafter and that no further dealings will be had with the unions.

Several small concerns operating one to four wagons have signed the scale demanded, and their wagons, bearing large signs proclaiming this fact, are permitted to pass through the streets. All others are the targets for stones, bullets, bombs and other missiles, and when they attempt to operate without police protection the drivers are dragged to the street and unmercifully beaten.

Some of the larger concerns sent out their trucks in caravans under the convoy of police. Even this plan failed, as the mobs would blockade the street, cut the tires on trucks and the harness on horses. The police came in for harsh treatment, being knocked from motorcycles by stones. The mounted police had better success. They did not hesitate to ride into the jeering mobs and swing their clubs freely, but while they were thus engaged other mobs would overturn trucks and wagons and set them on fire.

Lost $50 Claimed By Two

Peyton Ballenger And Seymour Slaughter, The Latter Colored, Are Claimants

The ownership of a fifty dollar bill lost Saturday morning came up in the police court. The case will find its way to a civil court it was stated after the hearing. Seymour Slaughter, colored, lost an envelope containing $50.05 near King and Alfred streets, representing his pay which he had just received at Potomac yards.

A son of Peyton Ballenger also lost $50 at about the same place. Both were in envelopes. The envelope containing Slaughter's money bore his name.

Thomas Wallace, colored, found an envelope containing $50.05 and he had gone but a short distance when Peyton Ballenger called him and he turned the money over to Mr. Ballenger when the latter made known his loss.

Wallace dropped the envelope and later came back and got it and he said it bore Slaughter's name. Mr. Ballenger, however, refused to give the money to Slaughter. This resulted in the case being called for trial in court today at the instance of Slaughter. Attorney Carl Budwesky appeared for Slaughter and F. G. Duvall for Mr. Ballenger.

Mr. Budwesky expects to take the case before civil court for final disposition. In the meantime Mr. Ballenger retains the $50.

VIRGINIA NEWS PARAGRAPHED

Wytheville,—Governor elect E. Lee Trinkle, of Virginia, has just received an invitation to attend the conference of governors in Columbia, S. C., the opening session to be held on December 5, 1921. This will be a meeting of the governors of the various states to consider governmental problems. Mr. Trinkle has also received an invitation to address the Virginia Society of New York in New York City some time during the month of December. He could not state positively whether or not he would be able to accept.

Norfolk—Indictments alleging a conspiracy to defraud the government were returned Saturday in federal court here against three civilian officials of the Norfolk navy yard. Those named in the indictments were William B. Aydelotte, chief clerk to the industrial manager; Henry Pile, yard sanitation inspector, and Oliver Bright, captain of the yard police. Action of the grand jury in this matter followed an extensive investigation by department of justice agents into alleged irregularities in disposing of government property at the yard. The three men under indictment are accused of conspiring to defraud the government of funds derived as proceeds from the sale of scrap wood and lumber in the yard.

Cape Charles,—James Smith, 22 years old, an agent for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, residing in Cape Charles, died at the home of his mother, Mrs. James E. Smith, of Onancock, Va., early Saturday morning, as the result of swallowing rat poison which was mistaken for medicine. Smith took the poison in the office of the insurance company here one week ago. He had hovered between life and death since that time. He was well known on the Eastern Shore of Virginia.

Norfolk—Four pennies, all he had, and he gave them to the Red Cross, that's what a little colored boy did. He went into the Bank of Commerce building Saturday morning and gave his savings to Mrs. J. B. Stanard, who was in charge of the Roll Call booth. In the crowd and the excitement the little fellow left before his name could be learned. Now Mrs. Stanard wants to find who he is and she would like to have him call at her home, 221 West Twelfth street. She's got "something nice" for him.

Norfolk—An increase of 25 cents in the tax rate and reductions in salaries that range from 2½ per cent in his own downward to 5 per cent in salaries between $2,000 and $3,000 are City Manager Ashburner's, chief recommendations for meeting city government expenses next year that will be more than $500,000 greater than they were during the present year.

Lynchburg—Mrs. H. Oscar Blankenship, of Big Island, who was hurled through the wind shield of an automobile late Saturday in an accident at Big Island, is a patient at the Memorial Hospital here, with her throat cut from ear to ear, through the windpipe into the tongue. Blood transfusion was resorted to save her life. Several volunteers were declined because tests showd the wrong type of blood. Finally physicians in the operating room gave the blood the woman needed to save her life.

Richmond—Attorney General Jo Lane Stern announced Saturday that Governor Westmoreland Davis had named Captain R. L. Purdon, commanding the Howitzer Company, Second Regiment, at Chatham, aide-de-camp on his staff. Captain Purdon was injured in action overseas with the Forty-seventh Infantry, and since his discharge has been organizing the National Guard companies in the state.

Norflok—Arthur Smith killed two bears in the Hodges Ferry section of Norfolk county last week, one of them weighing 205 pounds and the other 105 pounds. They were shot at a point between the Hodges Ferry road and the Virginian highway. Mr. Smith said bears are plentiful in Dismal Swamp this fall, and that they are forced to the outer edge of the swamp in search of water.

Danville—$200,000 bond issue is proposed by the council of South Boston, the money to be used in taking up notes on street improvement work, the carrying out of a sewerage program and the purchase of a new site for a high school.

Bible Thought for Today

THE SECOND COMMANDMENT: — Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image or any likeness of any thing that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth: thou shalt not bow down thyself to them, nor serve them: for I the Lord thy God am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate me; and showing mercy unto thousands of them that love me, and keep my commandments. —Exodus 20: 4-6.

PLAN PROPOSED FOR TEN YEAR NAVAL HOLIDAY

U. S. Naval Torpedo Station At Alexandria Will Be Affected.

MAKE OTHER THINGS

Drive Of Organized Labor To Use All Such Plants for Manufacture of "Engines of Peace."

Washington, D. C., Nov. 16.—A drive by organized labor was under way today to convert all Government naval plants to the manufacture of "engines of peace" should a "ten-year naval holiday" be declared.

An army of 60,000 workers and $250,000,000 worth of equipment are directly involved in the project. The "holiday," labor men asserted, would throw 42,000 men out of work immediately with probably 25,000 more within a year. Of this number 30,000 would lose their positions at once in private shipbuilding plants.

The drive, launched by the International Association of Machinists, has already been recognized by the Government, it was stated. Director of the Budget Charles C. Dawes, it was pointed out, has already requested department heads for estimates of work which could be done for the Government at its own factories.

Under the machinists' plan, which is supported by all labor, the navy yard plants would be utilized to manufacture mail trucks, airplanes, dredging machines, and irrigation engines for reclamation work, as well as water power machinery.

Private shipbuilding yards would be struck a crippling blow by the "naval holiday," according to authorities here. Six private yards would have to close, throwing 30,000 men out of work. These are located at San Francisco, Tacoma, Quincy, Mass., Philadelphia, Newport News, Va., and Sparrows Point, Md.

Fourteen Government plants, all employed now on "instruments of war," could be immediately used in fashioning "engines of peace." Five yards now making fighting equipment have machinery ready for instant use in peace service. These are located at Charleston, W. Va.; Watervliet, N. Y.; Newport, R. I.; Alexandria, Va., and Washington. They now make heavy guns, torpedoes and armor plate.

Seven great battleship yards could be ready for "peace work" in a short while. These are the navy yards at Portsmouth, N. H.; Norfolk, Va.; Boston, New York, Mare Island, Cal.; Philadelphia and Charleston, S. C. These yards, it was stated, would concentrate first on dismantling the battleships "scrapped," but would also be utilized under labor's plan in building tractors, steam shovels, irrigation engines and the like.

Mail trucks, the plan provided, could be made at Mare Island, Washington, Newport, and Alexandria. The same plants could manufacture car wheels, axles, and even airplanes, with slight changes in present equipment.

The Charleston, W. Va., plant would devote its whole personnel to making projectiles. Repairs to merchant marine would also occupy all coastal yards.

Government arsenals are included in the peace plans. These, located at Rock Island, Ill.; Frankfort, Pa.; Springfield, Mass.; Watervliet, N. Y.; Watertown, Mass., and Picatinny, N. J., would add the manufacture of mail trucks to their present output.

Steam shovels for irrigation use and widening canals and river channels, machinery for reclaiming swamps and similar "heavy work" could be done at Mare Island, Charlestown, S. C., Boston, and New York under labor's plan.

Water power machinery for establishing "second Niagaras" throughout the whole country could be manufactured, without much change, in the plants at Norfolk, Philadelphia (Hog Island), and Boston, it was said.

First Grade Teachers at Home To Patrons

On Friday afternoon, November 18, from 2 to 4 o'clock, Mrs. L. P. Woodward, of the Washington School and Misses Nannie Davis, Anne E. Moncure, and Elizabeth King, of the Lee School, will be at home to the patrons of their afternoon schools in their respective school rooms from 2:00 to 2:45, the guests are asked to encourage their children by visiting them at their work. At 3 o'clock the children will be dismissed and the parents will gather at the Lee School Building for a social hour and for informal discussion of any matters which they wish to suggest. Light refreshments will be served.

If parents realize how much it means to their children for them to visit them at their work, every family will be represented. At another time it is hoped to give an opportunity to the patrons of the morning first grade to see their chidren at work.

"Y." Meeting Thursday

Large things frequently develop from small beginnings. This is the history of the Y. M. C. A. in Alexandria. About two years ago a small committee of public spirited citizens undertook to organize an Association in this town. About seventy-five contributors furnished the budget for the first year.

A general secretary was employed and the work begun which has for so long been needed for the boys and younv men of the community. The work has been conducted without a building and practically without equipment, but has been carried on thorough the schools, churches, Sunday Schools, Clubs, etc., with an astounding amount of work accomplished.

Through attendance campaigns in the Sunday schools these have almost doubled in attendance; organized work for boys with a definite Christian training program has resulted in six troops actively at work; organized work in the railroad shops resulted in a splendid delegation going from the shops here to the International Railroad Conference at Richmond, and a Sunday School base ball league with five teams organized by the Association played all summer to thousands of enthuiastic fans.

Lenten services were held in many of the shops and factories last spring; Several delegates attended the State Y. M. C. A. convention last year; a ladies auxiliary organized by the association has initiated and carried on at its own expense work for women and girls that is meeting a community need of an invaluable nature.

A summer camp of thirty boys gave these young "Pioneers" their first opportunity to spend ten days under canvas with definite training in Bible study, first aid to the injured, nature study, gymnastic training, etc., while six delegates attended the older boys conference at Lynchburg, resulting in a Bible study class of young men in the high school with one of the professors in charge.

Thrift week was observed last year cal pastors at the request of the Association on this most important sub- and five sermons were preached by loject, special motion pictures were shown and literature distributed. The Pioneers practically unanimously adopted the weekly savings plan. Six religious meetings were held in a down town theatre to which men of every creed felt welcome and attended in large numbers.

A Teacher training class for the Sunday Schools with an enrollment of ninty-eight was conducted with one of the best teachers procurable in charge. Free motion pictures have been shown weekly to boys at the Chamber of Commerce and hundreds have availed themselves of the opportunity to see educational films.

These astounding figures are taken from the records of the local "Y;"

Men's meetings, six with an attendance of 1230; 14 athletic meets; 41 committee meetings with an attendance of 434; 92 health talks to 4445 men; 150 general talks to an audience of15,988, or 212 addresses to 20,433 listeners; 38 base ball games to 17,100 fans; 14 socials with an attendance of 1797, and 133 visits to Sunday Schools.

53 gymnasium classes with an attendance of 1123; 82 motion picturs shows to an audience of 7665; 1280 calls made in the interest of community betterment; 13 Bible classes with an attendance of 349.

Besides this work for men and boys by the Association, the Ladies Auxiliary has initiated and carried on comunity work for the women girls and girls, in addition to the assistance they have been in the other work as well: 21 sewing classes with an attendance of 869; cooking classes of 12 sessions with an attendance of 128; while 53 have attended their dressmaking classes and 45 a class in home nursing, the latter having just begun this fall.

There will be a special meeting in the interest of the local Y. M. C. A. at the Chamber of Commerce tomorrow evening and State Secretary, M. W. Lee, of Richmond, will be the principal speaker.

UNIT ORGANIZED

Woman's National Foundation To Have Branch in Alexandria

There was a large and enthusiastic response from the limited number of invitations sent out by Mrs. Morris L. Horner for the organization of the Woman's National Foundation in Alexandria yesterday afternoon. This meeting dealt entirely with organization, and yesterday, November 15, was the organization day all over the country. Mrs. Horner is chairman of this unit and other officers elected were, Miss Helen Calvert, secretary, and Mrs. John Hunton Foster treasurer.

Plans were formulated for bringing in a larger membership and all women who are interested in this movement or who are willing to be informed of its advantages and purpose are requested to meet on Tuesday afternoon, December 6, at 3 o'clock in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce at which time there will be an interesting speaker from the National Headquarters. A most cordial invitation is extended to the women of the town.

HUGHES PLAN IS ACCEPTED WITH MINOR CHANGES

Principle Is Acceptable. Other Powers Show Their Hands for First Time.

CHANGES IN DETAILS

Secret Meeting of Far East Committee Today Brings That Question To the Front.

Washington, Nov. 16.—Both reassuring oratory, accepting, in principle, the Hughes proposal of a 10-year naval holiday, and the initial outcropping of reservations and modifications desired by the foreign delegations were the fruits today of the second open session of the Conference on the Limitation of Armament.

Following the informal session Great Britain, France, Japan and Italy have come forward and, with more or less directness, proposed changes. It is the first real showing of hands in an international game with world peace, as well as national security, as the stakes. No modification yet suggested to the Hughes plan is sufficiently radical to menace the success of the Conference.

Great Britain, for instance, would reduce the submarine tonnage below the 90,000 proposed by Secretary Hughes. It also would not scrap all navy yards, but have each country maintain during the holiday period one yard that would be capable of turning out one ship annually.

Japan wants a bit more allowance for herself under the five three ship tonnage clause of the Hughes plan. She also would have no more fortifications built in the Pacific.

France and Italy seek more capital ship tonnage for the protection of their outlying possessions. All are regarded as matters capable of adjustment in the greater scheme.

Meanwhile Secretary Hughes projected the Far Eastern question at the virtual outset of the Conference by calling a meeting of the committee delegated to handle this issue. This committee will assemble in secret session tomorrow. The Conference work thus begins to pass into the hands of committee rather than open session.

The armament committee held a meeting this afternoon and mapped out its important work. Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, was named chairman of the subcommittee on the technical points involved in the limitation of armament. The other members are Admiral Beatty, Vice Admiral DeBon, Vice Admiral Acton and Vice-Admiral Kato.

With the committees beginning work, the open sessions of the Conference are adjourned subject to the call of Chairman Hughes. While these committees will work behind closed doors, it is asserted on behalf of all of the nations that this does not mean "secret diplomacy." There will be full publicity, it is said, and the committee work is necessary for intimacy of comment about the tables as the limitation of armament program moves forward to a conclusion.

Probable modifications of the Hughes schedule, as advanced by the nations, mainly concern details and not the foundation of the well worked out American proposition. France, in addition to her reservations to the naval limitation proposals, promises to project in the near future the problem of land armament.

tionmsoun e do mod om do o

Lord Riddell, meeting newspaper correspondents, stressed Great Britain's antipathy to the submarine and suggested the submarines tonnage for that country and the U. S., should not exceed for each more than 45,000 to 50,000, certainly not more than 60,000.

Representative Britten, of Illinois, ranking Republican of the Naval Affairs Committee, introduced a resolution in the House directing the navy to stop construction on 15 ships, including nine battle ships and six battle cruisers, pending a conclusion of the arms Conference.

Another development outside of the Conference proper was the picketing of Continental Hall, where the Conference met, by women demanding amnesty for so-called "political prisoners" sentenced during the war. The demonstration was staged by the American Civil Liberties Union.

Dollar Day a Success

Dollar Day was one of the biggest and best ever. This was the unanimous verdict of the participating merchants. From the opening of the stores this morning they were crowded with shoppers and also early this afternoon.

The shoppers were well pleased with the offerings and they bought heavily. The merchants again demonstrated that more real value for one dollar can be obtained in Alexandria than elsewhere and conclusively proved that it pays to shop in Alexandria.

JUSTICE AND REPARATION

There is an investigation now going on before a committee of the United States Senate that we hope will result in righting a grievous wrong done to one of the heroes of the world-war. The reparation should also be commensurate with the injustice, if it be possible. But we doubt this, since the months and years of mental suffering caused by the cruel attachment of an apparently unwarranted stigma upon the reputation of a young man can never be condoned or erased from the tablets of memory.

We refer to the case of Captain Edmund Chamberlain, who, in our opinion, is the innocent victim of perhaps the most singular concatenation of events known to military history. An intricate web of circumstantial evidence; a puzzling labyrinth of incident and adventure; that need but the slightest connecting link, the merest shred of testimony from human lips, to clear forever the name of a youthful soldier and establish his claim to the gratitude of his country instead of its obloquy and reproach.

But this testimony, alas! is apparently unobtainable. The lips of the dead are dumb—sealed with the silence of the tomb. The lips of the living may be sealed with a silence almost as irrevocable—the terrible fear of their own eternal disgrace should they pronounce the truth!

A young American officer in the World War, who had mastered the dare-devil art of the fighting-aeroplane; who had taken active part in fifteen bombing raids on the Hun; at one time officially attached to a British squadron; who had achieved the confidence, the respect, even the admiration of his comrades; who was known to them for his unassuming modesty; his invariable reticence as to his own exploits; his manifness of demeanor; his unquestionable physical courage, and a moral character above reproach;—all these were established and proven—and should have been sufficient to shatter the miserable structure of circumstantial evidence, negative at best, to its very foundations.

But—here comes the wretched mystery that made all this of no avail. It seems that Captain Chamberlain, on duty with an American squadron, had obtained leave from his commanding officer to visit unofficially the western front to gain information as to the latest tactics in use. He arrived at the British flying field at Touquin and learning of a bombing raid about to take place, asked permission of the British commander to accompany the raid in one of the spare aeroplanes. It was understood that his presence was to be purely unofficial—almost unrecognized, since it was a flat violation of the British regulations to grant permission.

Captain Chamberlain made the flight, got into desperate engagements with the enemy aeroplanes, overcame several of them and was forced finally to land with his own machine practically demolished. Retreating on foot he met a detachment of Germans whom he frightened by pretending to fling a bomb, captured a non-commissioned officer, whom he drove in front of him, and finally found himself within the French lines.

The destruction of the British aeroplane, however, precluded any report by the officer in charge of the flying field to headquarters, as it would have involved his own punishment and perhaps disgrace.

This is the peculiar feature that apparently involves the whole affair in such profound mystery. At first, it seems probable the aviation officer who gave permission to Captain Chamberlain to use the extra aeroplane failed to report its use and disappearance, not dreaming that an international episode would grow out of the occurrence. Then, when the matter got into the papers, his fellow-officers were bound to stand by their comrade. The British Government stood by its nationals, and the subsequent martyrdom of an unknown young American aviator was the natural consequence.

Admiral Sims, a pronounced British sympathizer, and an Englishman by birth, had the appointment of the original board of inquiry, which according to the record, denied to Captain Chamberlain many courtesies that should have been accorded him, and many privileges that were his by right. The Admiral furthermore convened a court of only nine members when the defendant was entitled to a full court of thirteen members. Six of these naval officers, so appointed, were from Sims' own staff, constituting a majority, and sufficient to convict. Four of the court were serving directly in or were connected with the British admiralty posts, or were the Admiral's representatives in British offices. The majority of the court knew little or nothing of aviation, and the one man who is believed to have dissented from the verdict was an officer in the Marine Corps, with many decorations, and known as an intrepid fighter.

Altogether it would seem that young Chamberlain was not given a fair deal. He was convicted by a courtmartial with apparently British sympathies, and dismissed from the service, to go through life with a blackened name and a tarnished reputaton.

He comes from one of the best families of Texas, whose record is without stain or blemish. He, himself, as stated, had an unusually clear record both as to character and achievement.

We understand that the Senate Committee, before whom the case has been re-opened, is giving the entire matter a most careful and painstaking investigation. Our own Senator Swanson is on the committee, and we feel sure of absolute justice, of course, so far as he is concerned.

The record, so far as we have read it, is enough to make any American shudder with apprehension, when he sees how easy it is to be enmeshed in a web of purely circumstantial evidence, and to be condemned to worse than death by a series of disconnected facts, which during the frightful cataclysm of a world war, it is impossible to controvert, and which in a military court do not need corroboration or explicit and unmistakable connection. In a criminal court, here or in England, the judge would have charged the jury that unless they were convinced beyond a reasonable doubt of the guilt of the accused, it would be their duty to acquit him.

The father of the young officer is a man of the highest standing in the Lone Star State. He is prepared to devote his whole life and fortune to the ultimate clearing of the heinous charges against his son. Our whole sympathy goes out to him and to the youthful aviator whose daring and whose patriotism have been so well attested. May they prevail in the end, and may this great government of ours make due reparation!

THE WOMAN CITIZEN.

How is it possible for the woman of today to meet the requirements of a home-maker, mother, and voter, with all her social and political activities, if she is to go on suffering the pain that comes from ailments peculiar to her sex?

Check the malady at once by a conscientious treatment of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at the first sign of backache, and dragging-down sensations, so common to women who suffer from female diseases. 273-1c

BAD BLOOD RUINS COMPLEXIONS

Pepto-Mangan Makes Rich, Red Blood—Liquid or Tablets.

The woman whose complexion is muddy and almost sallow has blood that is clogged with poisons. She awakens in the morning with a languid feeling. She seems to have no energy at all.

Her blood is weak and thin and she needs to take Gude's Pepto-Mangan for a while, as thousands of women do when they feel run down. It makes rich, red blood. Where blood was thin and weak it becomes rich and red. Then that woman who has had such a bad complexion and has found it so hard to do things, begins to look a lot rosier. She doesn't look so droopy and tired. In a little while the look on her face brightens her complexion clears up, and she feels happier.

The druggist in your neighborhood sells Gude's Pepto-Mangan. It has been recommended by doctors for years. There is the liquid and tablet form. Take your choice because the medicinal value is the same. The name, "Gude's Pepto-Mangan," is on each package.—Adv. 273-1c.

FREEING THE RANGE COUNTRY OF PREDATORY WILD ANIMALS

Uncle Sam maintains an army of approximately 350 professional hunters who by policing the western range country protect many million dollars' worth of live stock from damage and death by predatory animals. The Bureau of Biological Survey, United States Department of Agriculture, estimates that annual losses of from $20,000,000 to $30,000,000 a year were heretofore sustained through the slaughter of domestic stock by mountain lions, bears, wolves, coyotes, and other wild beasts which prey on horses, cattle, sheep, and swine. The average destruction by predatory animals is estimated to be $1,000 worth of live stock annually for each wolf and mountain lion, $500 worth for each stock-killing bear, and $50 worth of damage by each coyote and bobcat. The Government hunters utilize every possible means—guns, traps, poisons, and the like—to decrease the numbers of range rascals which ravage domestic herds and flocks. They police the Rocky Mountain States from Washington to Texas and are constantly in receipt of calls from regions where predatory depredations occur.

Three Principal Methods of Destruction

With the adoption of the hunter service, three methods of destroying predatory animals were inaugurated—shooting, trapping, and poisoning. during the first year 424 wolves, 9 mountain lions, 11,890 coyotes, and 1,564 bobcats were exterminated. Extensive activities were also devoted to the matter of suppressing rabies in the range country. An outbreak of rabies in Nevada was ultimately largely suppressed.

Illustrative of the damage done by wild beasts, in Colorado a single wolf killed nearly $3,000 worth of cattle in one year. In Texas two wolves killed 72 sheep,, valued at $9 each, during a period of two weeks. One wolf in New Mexico killed 25 head of cattle in two months, while another killed 150 cattle valued at about $5,000 during a six months' period.

In Wyoming two male wolves were killed which during one month had destroyed 150 sheep and 7 colts. Another pair were reported to have killed about $4,000 worth of stock during the year preceding their capture. The county agricultural agent at Coalville, Utah, reported that wolves had killed 20 per cent of the year's calf crop in his section. A wolf captured in New Mexico was known to have killed during the preceding five months 20 yearling steers, 9 calves, one cow, 15 sheep, and a valuable sheep dog.

After personal investigation during a recent year, the President of the State Agricultural College of New Mexico reported that 34,350 cattle, 165,000 sheep, and 850 horses are killed annually by predatory animals in that State, these losses amounting to $2,715,250 and involving the sacrifice of 16,000,000 pounds of meat and approximately 1,320,000 pounds of wool.

At the present time the Government hunters police 13 districts, each with a trained inspector in charge, which cover Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, South Dakota, Oregon, Texas, Utah, Washington, and Wyoming. The hunters of the various districts are paid in part from the Federal Treasury and in part from cooperative funds and moneys supplied by State appropriations, and from contributions from live stock organizations and individuals.

Methods Have Been Greatly Improved

Study and experimentation have resultd in great improvement in the methods and practice employed in eradicating predatory animals. The poisoning campaigns have increased in number, and have been more effectively organized each succeeding year. Their success has been such that in many areas stock growers are urging their application during the appropriate season. These campaigns have been followed by a marked decrease in the number of coyotes in the sections poisoned, and a corresponding decrease in the loss of sheep, cattle, pigs, colts, and poultry. Reports from stockmen indicate that on many ranges and lambing grounds the former heavy annual losses have become negligible, or have been entirely eliminated.

During a recent five year period a total of 128,513 dangerous rogues of the range have been killed and skins secured. This enormous bag consists of 109,546 coyotes, 15,374 bobcats and lynxes, 2,936 wolves, 540 mountain lions and 317 bears. In addition, coyotes numbering more than the above total were killed by the organized poisoning campaigns. Estimates based on information supplied during 1920 by farmers and stockmen indicate that the destruction of approximately 50,000 predatory animals under the direction of the Biological Survey resulted in the saving of live stock for the year valued at about $6,000,000, calculated on prices prevailing during that period. During a period of 5 years the sales of skins taken by Federal hunters totaled $240,423.36, and that amount was turned into the United States Treasury.

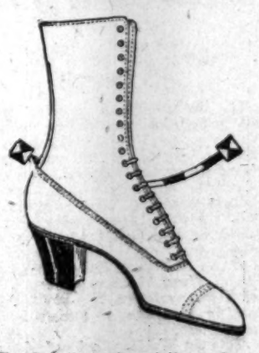
Do You Walk With a Smile or a Limp

Wearers of Cantilever Shoes walk with an easy poise that bespeaks freedom from foot troubles. They step out with easy carriage, ankles straight and steady, feet arched with natural grace. They can walk for a long time without fatigue. And that swinging walk brings health and a greater capacity for happiness.

Well-fitted shoes contribute importantly to your strength and to your happiness. They must provide room for the toes, and freedom for the flexible arch of the foot. They must not check the free play of the muscles.

Ordinary stiff-shanked shoes bind the foot and prohibit its natural movement. But the Cantilever Shoe has a flexible shank that bends with the foot. The shoe yields with every step, encourages the foot muscles to exercise, and keep strong.



The Cantilever last follows the outline of the foot. The toes may stretch luxuriously. They point ahead as they should for comfort and correct posture. The set of the heel tends to distribute the weight so that the body is well poised. And the shoes are good-looking, graceful, trim, correct.

WITH THE WISHING FAIRY
by CORINNE

A Donkey Gets Lost at the End-of-the-Earth.

THERE was an awful noise at the End-of-the-Earth, and it seemed to come from the Get Little Pool. Stella, the Wishing Fairy, and her Brownies looked at one another in astonishment, for they could not imagine what it was. Pimzie and Snookums even put their fingers in their ears.

"Have you ever seen a Wild Ass?" Stella asked.

"Yes," said Pimzie, grinning from ear to ear, "I have seen Snookums!"

"Well," exclaimed Snookums indignantly, "I may be foolish and perhaps I am stupid but I'm not such a Donkey as all that, and, what is more, I think you are very rude, Pimzie."

"Oh, I'm sorry, Snookums, dear; I was only joking," and he threw an arm around Snookums's shoulder. He turned suddenly to the Fairy. "Why did you ask us if we had ever seen a Wild Ass?"

"Because that awful braying sounds like one. I wish," she added, "you would go and find out just what it is."

The braying was growing louder and louder; so Pimzie ran in the direction it came from.

When he reached the Get Little Pool he saw a small Donkey standing on the opposite side. His mouth was open and he was calling and screaming in an awful way—telling his troubles in Donkey fashion.

"Hey, there!" Pimzie yelled to him. "What's all the noise about?"

The Donkey stopped has "hee-bawing" and looked curiously at the tiny Brownie, but he did not answer.

"Who are you?" demanded Pimzie.

"I'm an Ass," was the answer.

"You surely are!" exclaimed Pimzie with a giggle. "You never said a truer thing. What in the world is the matter?"

"I'm lost!" and the poor little animal was almost in tears, and, suddenly opening his mouth, he once more started his outrageous braying.

"Stop that noise," commanded the Brownie, "You are worse than a thunderstorm! Where do you come from?"

"Africa," the Donkey answered quieting down for a moment, "and I am afraid I will never see it again."

"Don't worry," laughed the Brownie, "we don't want anything as upsetting as you around our peaceful End-of-the-Earth. I'll be only too glad to tell you the way home."

And he did. After he had seen the Ass safely started toward Africa he rushed back to where he had left Stella and told her about it.

"The stupid thing!" he exclaimed. "I'm glad he is gone."

"But, you are wrong, Pim, dear, about the Ass being stupid," Stella told him. "He is really very clever, and much more sure footed than a Horse, even though he is a cousin and his life is longer, for he lives forty and fifty years."

"Do you mean to say he is related to the Horse?" Pimzie cried. "His ears are much longer, he is altogther smaller and his legs are shorter. All I can say," he added, laughingly, "that it isn't much of a compliment to the Horse!"

"He also is related to the Zebra."

"I remember when long ago the Zebra came here with a wish for pretty markings and you gave him his black satin stripes," said Snookums thoughtfully, "but, tell us, Stella, dear, are there different kinds of Donkeys?"

"Yes, indeed," the Fairy answered, "there is the 'Koulan Ass,' which is the biggest of them all and lives in Tibet. He is light yellowish brown and has a black mane and tail as well as a dark stripe along his spine. Then there is the African Ass, whose color is bluish gray. He also has a dark stripe down his back, but his stripe crosses his shoulders as well and his stomach is white. He lives in the desert.

"The 'Onager Ass' of Asia is silver white, his back and sides are colored and he has a white streak down the withers and a very narrow brown stripe along the back. In winter his hair grows to such a length that it really seems like wool. In the United States," Stella added, "the Ass or Donkey (for they are really the same) was first imported by President Washington, and has been, with the Mule, a great favorite, especially in the Southern States."

Five Jurors Are Tentatively Chosen

San Francisco, Nov. 16.—Roscoe C. Arbuckle appeared today in the role of defendant in manslaughter proceedings arising from the death of Virginia Rappe, like himself a figure in the motion picture world. Arbuckle's audience was one of the smallest that ever watched him, only a few hundred persons crowding into the screen antics of the comedian like the court room.

However, no throng ever watched today's gathering gave attention to the dry procedure of selecting a jury. Arbuckle himself showed he felt the importance of the occasion. His smile was lacking.

Arbuckle's wife was in court but did not sit beside him at the counsel table

Gavin McNab, chief counsel for Arbuckle, stated that the defense would make no effort to discuss the character of the dead girl. He told the court this formally.

When adjournment came late this afternoon five jurors, one of them a woman, had been accepted tentatively.

Pimzie Tells of His Visit to a Farm in New England.

"THE Owl's home, which was a hole in an old apple tree and where I slept for several nights, was on a lovely farm," said Pimzie to Stella, the Wishing Fairy, and the other three Brownies, who were all listening to him tell of the things that had happened when he had been far away in the World where Humans live. "It was a wonderful farm, and a little boy and girl lived there. Of course they couldn't see me, but I followed them everywhere and while with them I saw all that there was to see."

"Early in the morning several grown up Humans went to a large field and opened a gate so that the Cows could come through. There were ever so many, and they walked ever so slowly into a big barn where the Humans milked them; then they went back to their field. In another meadow there were a lot of calves that romped and frisked around in the sunshine. There also were hundreds of Chickens and Ducks and their dear little fluffy babies. They were kept in a long, low house that was painted white and had wire netting around it. Several times I crawled through a hole in the netting so as to be near them. I noticed that the mother hens laid their eggs in large straw nests, and I used to laugh at the way they cackled. I wonder why it is, Stella," and Pimzie giggled, "that every time a hen lays an egg she cackles as though she were surprised about it. I should think she would get used to it!"

The Brownie paused a moment. "There were pigs, too," he continued; "ever so many baby ones that ran around and acted as though they thought they were ever so important.

"There was a lake near the farm where I swam several times, and once I rode on the back of some kind of a water bug who was darting over the surface of the water. I saw lots of things the time I did that—water lilies and a long water snake that frightened me half to death. When I looked down from the Water Bug's back I could see the fishes swimming below me. I also saw a lot of Turtles sleeping on a rock, and they seemed to like the sun, and I talked with several wild Ducks, who told me that they were going to fly south in a few days. They said that next spring they would return. One evening I was sitting in the Owl's hole in the apple tree when"——

"I don't see how both you and Mr. Owl could have been comfortable there!" Snookums remarked.

"Oh, it was a splendid arrangement," Pimzie explained. "Mr. Owl slept all day while I was around the farm and at night when I slept he flew around in the moonlight. Before I went to sleep, though," Pimzie told his listeners, "I used to sit a long time on the edge of the hole and dangle my legs down over the rim."

"Why?" asked Lorykins. "I should think you would have gone to sleep instead of sitting up."

"Well," laughed Pimzie, "as you sleep most of the time when you are not eating I suppose you would have; in fact I guess you would have chased Mr. Owl out and taken his place; but I loved to watch the sky change color as the darkness began and to see the moon show over the hills. Old Mr. Owl would flap his wings and hoot first from one tree and then from another, the Whipoorwills and Bats would flit past me as I sat up in the trees. It was sort of sad and yet very, very beautiful. One evening I was listening to the Foxes barking in the hills when I looked straight down into two shining lights. They were the eyes of a Fox who was crouching not far from my apple tree, and he was eating a Duck he had just caught."

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 17, 1813.

On Friday night last, the small house, built at the principal draw of the Bridge across the Potomac, took fire and was burnt to the water edge, together with a considerable part of the Bridge. The damage is estimated at several thousand dollars. This accident, is another evidence of the falsity of that economy, which saves a dollar at the risks of thousands. Had the small house built upon the bridge been rendered "fire proof," and the occupant furnished with coal instead of wood, for fuel, the accident could not have happened. The Stockholders would not have lost their money and the public would not have been put to the extreme inconvenience of travelling nearly twice the former distance in order to get to Washington.

Oehlert Case

Will Be Presented to Grand Jury In Fairfax Monday

A grand jury will meet Monday morning at Fairfax Courthouse and among the cases to be presented will be that of William H. Oehlert, of this city, charged with the fatal shooting of Henry Briscoe, which occurred October 15, in Fairfax county on the Camp Humphreys road a few miles south of Alexandria. Several witnesses from this city have been summoned. It is also expected that a date for the trial soon will be set.

Lecture Thursday

As announced elsewhere in this paper, Mrs. Harriet Gunn Roberson, president of the Roberson School of Personality will give a lecture tomorrow, Thursday, evening, November 17, at 8 o'clock, in the Westminister Building. Mrs. Roberson's subject will be "Success Where You Are." A musical program will precede the lecture and later in the evening Mrs. Robertson will give character readings according to the latest methods.

SOLDIERS OF FORTUNE RETURN DISILLUSIONED

New York, Nov. 15.—Disillusioned as to the vaunted romantic life of soldiers of fortune, 83 men, all Latin-Americans except three who were American war veterans, returned today from Spain, where they went several months ago seeking adventure as members of the Spanish Foreign Legion.

The men said the reality of life in the Spanish Army opposing the Moors in Morocco did not fulfill hopes raised by reading the prospectus. None of the party joined the Spanish Army and all except three returned in the steerage quarters of the Spanish Royal Mail steamship, Montevideo.

One of the men said that volunteers in the Spanish Army are required to provide their own uniforms, rifles and other equipment and to pay for their meals, laundry and other expenses, in return for the equivalent of 60 cents a day. Another declared that a man serving under these conditions for a few months would fall into debt to the Spanish government and that the longer he served the deeper he would be involved.

V. M. I. To Save Old Guard Tree

Lexington, Nov. 16.—If there is one thing at the Virginia Military Institute which, more than any other one thing holds a fixed place in the memory of every man who has ever been a V. M. I. cadet, it is the old guard tree. It antedates the founding of the institute itself. All these years it has stood in front of barracks on the parade ground and every morning of the academic year for more than three-quarters of a century the cadet guard has marched around it at guard mount.

Also, under it many a cadet has and summer evenings. It has for many reasons come to be a cherished landmark.

The old tree is now showing its age and evidences of decay have appeared. General E. W. Nichols, superintendent of the institute, has taken steps to correct, as far as possible, these marks of age. An expert forester has been engaged to treat the old sentinl. He began work upon it today. General Nicholas said that he believed the life of the tree could be spared for many years to come, and it is the intention of the authorities to do all that science can suggest to prolong its life and its unique service.

Twelve oak trees have just been planted along the west edge of the parade ground in front of headquarters and officers quarters. Next year this row will be interspersed with elms.

AUTUMN FESTIVAL

The Autumn Festival, in Lyceum Hall, by the Catholic Daughters of America, last night was a success in every particular. A large crowd was in attendance.

A delicious supper was served.

The Holy Name Society will attend this evening. Thursday afternoon will be for the children from 2 to 4.

Agitation For Pardon Of Debs Is Started

Washington, Nov. 15.—A small army of pickets, including some medal of honor ex-service men, made a demonstration today before Continental Hall, where the Arms Conference is meeting, and demanded that the United States free its political prisoners.

Leaders state that the picketing will continue every day until the Conference is over unless President Harding and Attorney-General Daugherty pardon Eugene V. Debs and 144 others convicted for violations of the Espionage act.

The carrying out of this threat to make a demonstration before the White House or the Arms Conference meeting place aroused considerable indignation in the Administration circles here today. President Harding and Attorney General Daugherty indicated that they would not be hurried in their plans to deal with the political prisoners.

At 10 o'clock sharp the amnesty picket line formed in front of Continental Memorial Hall. Two strong, husky ex-service men, Carl O. Persons, of Minneapolis, commander of the World War Veterans, and "Sailor Jim" White, of New York, known as the "Hercules of the navy," led the procession, bearing two flags—one the American flag, and the other one declaring that "soldiers who fought the World War demand the release of the political prisoners." They were followed by women carrying banners bearing various declarations.

"Great Britain granted amnesty to political prisoners after the armistice," one of them read.

On their way to the sidewalk in front of Continental Memorial Hall the pickets were hissed by a party of women spectators who had assembled in the streets to see the members of the Conference arrive. One young woman charged the flag-bearers with being slackers. Carl O. Parsons stepped up to her and displayed his medals of honor, and asked if they indicated anything like a slacker.

After assembling the pickets stood for numerous pictures and then wheeled about to face the stream of people on their way to the Conference hall. Among the first to appear was Senator Lodge, but he paid no attention to the banners of the pickets. He rode in a big limousine looking straight ahead. A few minutes later William Jennings Bryan drove up, and in, but never saw the pickets. Lord Balfour was the first important personage to see the banners.

As he entered the gateway of the Continental Hall grounds admirers on the sidewalks cheered him, and, bowing recognition, his eyes swept over the placards and he smiled. Lord and Lady Lee read them as they hurried by. Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Koo, of the Chinese Legation, stopped and read the boards. Gen. Tasker Bliss, traveling on foot, stopped in front of the pickets, pointed his finger at the banner that read: "Soldiers who fought in the World War demand the release of political prisoners," and said: "They do not."

As the pickets took their departure they were hissed by spectators.

IN GROWN TOE NAIL TURNS OUT ITSELF

A few drops of "Outgro" upon the skin surrounding the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

"Outgro" is a harmless, antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

INTENTION OF DEFAULTING IS DENIED BY GERMANY

Berlin, Nov. 16.—The report that Germany has notified the Allies that she will be unable to meet the next reparations instalment was emphatically denied last night in official German quarters. A similar denial was made in Entente diplomatic circles, which are in close touch with negotiations now proceeding with the Reparations Commission.

On the contrary, it is stated, that the Wirth Cabinet is still acively conferring with interests regarding the use by the Government of their foreign credits in connection with the January and February reparations installments. The Government also has discussed with the Reparations Commission the manner in which these payments are to be made.

In this connection it was reported today that the Entente's economic experts in Berlin are not strongly inclined to share the German view that it will be wholly impossible for either the German Government or German industry to obtain required nancial accomodations in New York or London unless there is a clear understanding that the payments subsequent to the January and February installments will be adjusted to meet Germany's capacity to pay.

HOME BEAUTIFUL

By DOROTHY ETHEL WALSH.

Slip covers in winter? Why not? Time was when only a cream color material was considered correct for this use, but nowadays all hues are utilized. Of course primarily they are designed to protect the furniture and eliminate wintry looking upholstering in the summer time. But in using them so the housewife has discovered their real value and to-day they are in many homes an "all year round" convenience.

When, for instance, a chair with upholstery too good to change bids fair to ruin a carefully worked out color scheme by being out of harmony with it an inexpensive way to bring it round is to have it dressed in a slip of the needed shades. This plan is resorted to in many an instance. If your room lacks color, the upholstery being dark, a slip cover on a chair or two will give you an opportunity to introduce some brighter shades into the scheme. A room with gray wallpaper and blue hangings and upholstery will be much more cheerful if an orange color is placed in it, and if the opportunity presents itself a chair covered in material of that color will be most satisfactory.

Then again if too much figure material plays a part in the decorations the restless appearance bound to be found in such a room may be eliminated if some of the figured upholstery is hidden beneath plain slips.

Their uses are manifold. They are popular as summer coverings but their value as aids to winter decorations has not been sounded by the majority of home makers.

WITH THE WISHING FAIRY by CORINNE

The White Headed or Bald Eagle.

ONCE upon a time an enormous Eagle flew to the End-of-the-Earth to see Stella, the Wishing Fairy. He had come all the way from North America, but he did not mind the long trip, for he could fly tremendous distances without even feeling it. You see, he is the strongest and largest of all birds, and just as the Lion is called "King of Beasts" the Eagle is known as "King of Birds." He had a wish to tell Stella, and all along his journey he had been planning what he would say to her and how best to beg her make his wish come true.

As he explained to Stella, when at last he had reached her and had drunk thirstily from the Get Little Pool, he was for some reason that he could not understand called by Humans a "Bald Eagle."

"And, see," he told her while bending his head very low, "my head is covered with white feathers—just like my feet and tail. I'm not bald! My wish is that from now on I shall be called a 'White Headed Eagle.' It irritates me beyond words to be called bald!"

"Of course I will gladly make your wish come true," the little Fairy said, and she could not help smiling; "but I must say that even though you are King of the Air you are exceedingly foolish to let such a small thing bother you. If you were truly great—big in mind as well as in body—you would not care a bit when things that are untrue are said of you. I never have been able to understand," Stella continued, as she looked thoughtfully at him, "why people have chosen you as their national emblem; for in spite of your strength and size you are cowardly as well as mean."

"What do you mean?" and the big bird looked very guilty as well as astonished.

"Just what I say," answered the Fairy. "I happen to know that you perch away up on the highest trees you can find, so that you can scan the horizon; if you see a Fish Hawk swoop down to the water for food you wait until he has his fish in his bill, when you chase him and steal it. That is one of your favorite tricks, which shows that you are lazy and a bully. Furthermore," she continued, "I know that you are a coward. Your great size frightens smaller birds, but if by any chance they should turn and attack you, you would then be thoroughly frightened and leave them in peace."

The Eagle hung his head in shame, for he well knew that every word Stella said was quite true.

"I also know," the Fairy added, "that when you attack animals that are too large for you to seize and carry off in your great, cruel claws, you plunge your sharp, hooked bill in their eyes and blind them so that they will be unable to defend themselves."

"And I know another thing about you," Pimsie chimed in. "I know," he said to the Eagle, "because I heard you. I was lost one night and I was hiding in the lower branch of a tall tree. Your enormous nest was in the highest branch, and—you snored all night!"

Stella burst out laughing, but the Eagle bent his head still lower, for that also he knew was true.

"And I know something about you, too!" piped up Kinkajou. "I know that there is only one bird in the world you can't frighten, and that is your wife, for Mrs. Eagle is larger than you!"

But Mr. Eagle never heard this parting remark—for with a great whir of wings he had quickly flown away.

Red Cross Work

The Red Cross work man can not regain his health in a government hospital when he realizes that his loved ones at home may be suffering in the meanwhile. He can not acquire the new usefulness that vocational training strives to give him if he thinks that while he is working to attain this usefulness, the folks back home are feeling the pangs of privation.

Finding work for these veterans, seeing to it that in this work they are permitted to enjoy the privileges that were theirs before they answered their country's call, are functions that come within the scope of endeavor of the Red Cross.

During the current year the Red Cross spent $10,000,000 on this soldier work and more money was needed and needed desperately. The Fifth roll call makes it its aim to see that every single case is adequately provided for.

Hardly less important is the work undertaken by the Public Health Nursing Service of the Red Cross. A brave little army of nurses has been widely scattered over a vast terrain in the South in the best tactical positions to give the benefit of their services not only in a personal way in thousands of homes entered by affliction but to extend the benefit of their experience and knowledge in teaching the basic principles of health and hygiene and proper care of the sick in homes where such things have been unheard of.

Everywhere this service has been installed there have been demands from neighboring sections for a nurse. Soon it must extend to every neighborhood of every county or parish in the South. The roll call response makes this service possible.

And then these nurses form a reserve army that can be assembled immediately in cases of national stress or local calamity. There was no flood, cyclone or fire in the South during the year of 1921 that did not find a force of Red Cross nurses, properly equipped and ready for the most arduous service, on the scene within 12 hours after the disaster.

Should another war come, these nurses would form the nucleus of the same splendid Red Cross organization that did such noble work in '17, '18, and '19 and by having this nucleus ready, the army of nurses would be functioning practically on a moment's notice.

These are just a few of the phases that the organization is undertaking in its peace program. The success of all other activities naturally depend on the response of communities to the roll call.

WEAK, WEARY WOMEN

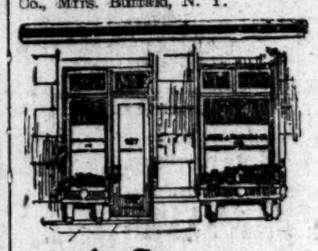
Learn The Cause of Daily Woes and End Them

When the back aches and throbs,
When housework is torture,
When night brings no rest nor sleep,
When urinary disorders set in,
Women's lot is a weary one,
Doan's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys.
Have proved their worth in Alexandria. Ask your neighbor.
This is one Alexandria woman's testimony.

Mrs. Milton Moore, 123 Duke St., gave the following statement on April 13, 1915: "Doan's Kidney Pills are one of our household remedies. I have used Doan's at different times when I have had backache and general kidney disorder with very good results. I always recommend anything I know is good and I am sure Doan's are a fine remedy."

On March 14, 1919, Mrs. Moore added: "I praise Doan's just the same as ever, for they have always been just as represented. If I have the least ache in my back a few of Doan's are sure to give me relief."

Price 60c, at any dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Moore had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs. Buffalo, N. Y.



A Strong Bond Market

The rapidity with which certain new issues of bonds have been oversubscribed, and the fact that interest rates have shown, during the past few months, a decided tendency toward lower levels, can be taken as evidence of the trend of the bond market.

While bond prices are still low we recommend the purchase of those kinds of bonds that are recognized as the safest, as we believe that the investment demand will center on such issues for months to come.

We have selected for your consideration a list of secured mortgage bonds, essentially Southern, yielding 7 to 8 per cent.

Write for circular if you are interested in what the South can offer.

LITTLE STORIES OF THE STREET
By The Man About Town

The Travelers Protective Association, of Alexandria, meets on the second Saturday in December in the Chamber of Commerce rooms to launch a Membership Campaign. They have already a membership of 212 and hope to enlist a good many more Mr. J. William May is at the head of the Alexandria division of the Association and he states that he hopes this winter to see it grow into one of the best organizations of the city, and confidently expects to realize his hopes. "Two hundred and twelve men can do a lot of work in a short time," he says, "and will."

Several merchants said yesterday that business was a bit slow, but it was as they expected. The people were waiting to get the Dollar Day bargains. This morning they said it was rushing them, with extra clerical force, to get the customers waited upon. Indications point to one of the biggest of Dollar Days, a sign that times are not bad at all, but that times are good.

The Alexandria High School will play the team of George Mason High School on Baggett's field next Saturday afternoon. The outcome of this game is very important to Alexandria as it will cause them to play Culpeper again if defeated, but if they are the victors the have the Championship of the North Eastern Section of the State and the right to lay the Maury High Team, of Norfolk, Championship for Eastern half of the State. The victors in this contest will then play the team of Lynchburg for the State Championship. One of the players of the A. H. S. team says that there is no doubt as to the outcome of the game Saturday, but one of the George Mason boys said the same thing. So to have a definate opinion as to which is the best team we must see the game Saturday.

One man seems to like to be the goat when jokes are sprung. He says, "No matter where or when you go into a theatre in Washington, if there are comedians there is at least one joke pulled on this old city of ours. When they spring one of those jokes, they, quite unconsciously of course, do Alexandria a good turn by letting the Washingtonians and Washington visitors know that there is such a city. Their curiosity is arroused and the very next time they have an opportunity they visit us. Let them laugh at us so long as they do us good. I don't think we should be offended.

The man about town stepped in beside a tired looking little person yesterday on the street. The little fellow seemed worried and the Man About Town politely inquired as to the trouble. "I am a Collector," he demurely replied, "doing my best to collect some bills but somehow or other everything seems to be going wrong. I can't collect them. Business seems brisk enough but no one seems to have any money. Sympathy is all they can give me today, perhaps something more substantial tomorrow or next week." "Yes," rejoined the Man About Town, "Those words, next week and tomorrow, grate upon the sensitive ear of the collector more than any others that I can think of. But cheer up "Old Scout," better times are in store for both of us if what the business men of the city tell us is true. They say that times are speedily returning to normal and will not be hard much longer." The collector bid a cherry good-by as he went upon his way whistling a merry tune.

MINE BOSS SAYS HE WAS HELPLESS

Arizona Man Was Simply Down and Out and Couldn't Even Move Himself—Feels Fine Now.

Harry E. Scott, a well-known mine boss, whose address is Box 683, Tombstone, Arizona, writes:

"I was down and out nearly all the time with rheumatism and finally got to where I couldn't move, even to feed myself. My wife thought I would never get well again, and she knew my condition better than anyone else.

"I was absolutely helpless when my wife started giving me Tanlac and in four days I ate a hearty meal for the first time in many months. Tanlac put me on my feet and I'm back on the job working hard and feeling just fine. I have gained 18 pounds in weight, too."

Tanlac is sold in Alexandria by Edgar Warfield, Jr., and by leading druggists everywhere.

Organize Basketball Team

The local council of the Knights of Columbus will organize a 1921 basket ball team under the direction of Bernard A. Seiple. The first practice of the team will be held in the Armory next week, when it is expected that the new team will get down to hard work and prepare themselves for some interesting games in the near future. The team would like to hear from any organizations who are open for game. Last year the Knights of Columbus basketball team was a member of the K. of C. League of Washington, and showed a lot of talent in the games that were alternately played in Alexandria and Washington.

This year the captain, Brother Seiple, plans to do some real hard plugging, and hopes to build up a team that will attract the interest of local basket ball fans.

HOME BEAUTIFUL

By DOROTHY ETHEL WALSH.

Table Covers Vie With Each Other for Popular Favor.

The table cover offers an opportunity to introduce brilliant spots of color into a room lacking in cheer. As the cushion does so the table runner or fitted part top. Neither one being part of the structural decorations, they can be as apparently unconcerned with it as though they had no dealings with them at all. In reality the more unconcerned they are the more they probably have to do with it, for by introducing these unrelated hues they supply the necessary complements which make the color complete.

Let us plan then some table covers which will serve the above mentioned purposes. An effective arrangement is to cut a piece of black velvet to just fit the top of the table and on top of that to use a runner of a brilliant shade of crepe de chine. Another stunning arrangement for a side table is to use copper colored silk as a fitted top and over it a runner of emerald green georgette.

A lovely article seen recently was a runner of lavender taffeta either end of which was ruffled with narrow strips of all colors of taffeta. A black satin cover is cut two inches larger than the table on all sides. Each corner is weighted with heavy gold and green tassels, and when these hang down the two inch margin of the cover bends and the effect is charming.

The ever obliging gold gimp does, of course, offer a means of finishing a plain piece of material in a manner hard to improve upon. The touch of gold gives an "air" to the most prosaic of materials and makes it easy to evolve a good looking table cover with little trouble.

WITH THE WISHING FAIRY BY CORINNE

Concerning Hares and Rabbits.

STELLA and the three Brownies were so interested in Pimzie's experience with the Lion that they asked him to tell them more.

I suppose you are wondering how Pimzie travels over the ocean when he wanders over the world in search of adventures. I will tell you. While away from the End-of-the-Earth and the Wishing Fairy a little of her magic powers are his, so that space means nothing to him. All he has to do is to think of some place and—zutt—he is there!

After Mr. Lion had left him to go home to his family Pimzie realized that he was all alone in the wilds of Africa and also that he was quite lonesome, so he wished to be somewhere else, and in a very short time he found himself in France, and the first thing he saw was a very large Hare. It was brownish yellow above while its underneath fur was pure white. Pimzie stared at the Hare and the Hare stared back without moving a muscle. It never even blinked, but finally its small nose wiggled a little.

"And then," he told Stella and the three other Brownies, "I burst out laughing, and it was not long before we had become great friends. It told me that it belonged to the Rat family, and that they all liked to live in an open country where they have their forms under bushes."

"What are 'forms'?" asked Snookums.

"That is the name for their homes," Pimzie explained. "I told it that I knew its cousin."

"'Which one'?' it asked; 'for I have many.'"

"'Cottontail,' I answered, "'for once upon a time it came to the End-of-the-Earth where I live!'"

"'Would you like to see another cousin of mine?' it asked, "'for if you do just hop on my back, I'll lay my ears down so that you can hold on to them, and I'll take you to northern Europe.' So that is what we did," Pimzie told his listeners, "and that was a very wild ride for me! I was quite tired out from trying to keep from falling off. My Hare friend had brought me to an awfully cold country and there I met an Alpine Hare. It was a jolly little fellow and its fur was pure white."

"Do you know why?" Stella asked the Brownie.

"No," Pimzie answered. "At the time I wondered why it wasn't brown as are other Hares and Rabbits. Why?"

"It has white fur," Stella explained, "because it lives where there is always snow, and its coloring is for protection as it is hardly noticeable against the snow. There is a Hare in the United States that is yellowish gray in summer while in winter it becomes white. That is also for its protection. It is known as a 'Jack Rabbit.'"

"I saw a Jack Rabbit, too!" cried Pimzie. "It was when I was in the Prairies of the United States, for, as I told you yesterday, I also went there. It was a strange country. I never knew that any country could be so flat, and I saw lots of animals and birds there. There were Coyotes, Gophers, Prairie Dogs and Prairie Chickens; but, Stella, dear, what long legs and ears Jack Rabbits have, and how fast they leap over the ground!"

"Do you know why they are called 'Jack Rabbits'?" and Stella smiled.

"No," all the Brownies answered at once. "Why?"

"Because of their ears, which are as long as those of a Jackass; so these Hares were named Jack for short. And did you know that Mrs. Jack often lines her home with fur that she has pulled from her own body?"

The Brownies shook their heads.

"She does that so as to make it soft and comfortable for her babies. Well, Pimzie," and she turned to him, "I am interrupting your story, and we want to hear more. "What next did you do?"

"From the Prairies," the Brownie answered, "I went to New England, and I liked it so much that I remained there for a long time."

"Where did you sleep?" asked Lorykins.

"In a large soft hole in an old apple tree. The hole belonged to an Owl whom I made friends with; so I lived with him."
